Gospel
Mark 3.20-23a, 28-30, 31-34

When Jesus was at his house with his family, many people gathered to listen to him teach. The crowd was so big that Jesus and his disciples couldn't even take time to eat.

Some of the teachers of the law were there from Jerusalem. They were talking about Jesus sending evil spirits out of people. They said,

"He has the chief devil, Beelzebul, living inside of him. That's where he gets the power to drive evil spirits out of others."

So Jesus called the people together and said to them,

"I tell you honestly, God will forgive all sins. If you say evil things against the Holy Spirit, you will not be forgiven. He told them this because they said the Spirit of Jesus was evil."

[Then his mother and brothers came, and they asked someone to go inside and say to Jesus,

"Your mother and your brothers are outside waiting for you."

Then Jesus looked at the people who were sitting there listening to him and he said,

"These people here are also my mother and my brothers and sisters, because my brothers and sisters and mother are people who do what God wants them to do.]

Prayer: God always faithful, may we never speak evil of what is good. Put in our hearts a love for everything that is right and true, so that through us, other people may come to know and love Jesus, your Son, who lives with you and the Holy Spirit forever and ever.
